Ann Kercheville, president and co-founder of Joshua Creek Ranch, a world-class hunting preserve and lodge in the Texas Hill Country, has two new exciting online endeavors geared toward the hunting life.

Kercheville has created a new lifestyle column titled "Shotgun Wife" – Chronicles of a Hunting Lodge Life – which is featured on Shotgunlife.com – the popular website for shooting and hunting enthusiasts. Kercheville is also the writer and creator of a new blog – Joshua Creek Ranch – "A Birds Eye View" that can be found on the Joshua Creek Website – www.joshuacreek.com.

With the creation of the monthly column, "Shotgun Wife", Kercheville will entertain hunters and shooters through columns which address the day-to-day life at an award-winning hunting lodge – everything from – meditation in a deer blind, to the hunting lodge household, how to measure success and more. Ann will give her take on being a "Shotgun Wife" and the realities that come with "the job". Always engaging, Ann will bring her unique take on what life is like running a world-class lodge and "all that goes with that!"

Emphasis is placed on the many humorous and engaging day-to-day events that unfold. From time to time the column will feature special recipes from Joshua Creek's Hunter's Harvest Cookbook and resources related to how to get the most out of your hunting lodge experience, exciting customized itineraries, outstanding bird dogs she loves, out of the mouths of babes, interesting guests, and wingshooting travel adventures that will have you ready to book a trip.

Kercheville says of her new column, "Shotgun Wife will give simple observations about living life married to an avid hunter AND a hunting lodge along with all the nuances that come with being a "24/7 Shotgun Wife"!
