One of the most scenic sporting clays courses in the country, open year-round.

Located in the picturesque Texas Hill Country, the setting for clay target shooting at Joshua Creek Ranch is one of the most beautiful in the country according to well-traveled shooters. Guests can choose between three venues for shooting clays: the two 10-station sporting clays courses, the wobble trap, and the triple trap wobbler. Any of the three can be organized into a variety of scenarios such as instruction, practice, warm-up for wingshooting, competition, or games. All are available year-round within an easy walking distance of Cypress Lodge, The Branch Haus, or the Long Haus.

Shotgun instruction, a handgun shooting range, and a long-range rifle shooting scenario are also available for guests. Both shotgun and handgun rentals are available at the Pro Shop.

35-40+ trophy Axis bucks are harvested every year at Joshua Creek Ranch. Several bucks are showcased in the Safari Club International record books, including a recent number one (see photo above right).

A protein feed program and over 20 blinds are maintained year-round, providing hunters with an exceptional free-range, low-fence opportunity to harvest the game of their choice. State of Texas seasons are observed for whitetail and turkey hunting, but Axis deer are hunted year-round, with the greatest abundance of hard-horn trophy Axis bucks occurring between May and September.

NEW!

Joshua Creek Ranch opened for guests in 1990 on some of the finest hunt country in America. Over the last three decades, it has been developed and nurtured, resulting in a sportsmen's paradise. The Ranch is a rare combination of diverse Texas Hill Country topography with crystal clear spring-fed Joshua Creek cutting through the middle of the Ranch to converge into the renowned cypress-lined Guadalupe River that forms the Ranch's north boundary.

From fertile creek and river bottom land to lightly wooded grass pastures with intervening limestone bluffs and ledges, the Ranch is managed to produce a prime wildlife habitat for hunting quail, pheasant, chukar and mallard ducks, as well as whitetail and Axis deer, and Rio Grande turkey. Guests can also enjoy sporting clays, fly fishing for trout, and summertime water sports.

From mid-September until May 1st, bobwhite quail, pheasant, and chukar are hunted in prime cover that has been developed and managed to attract and hold gamebirds. Hunts are conducted in a variety of styles, with traditional guided walk-up hunting behind dogs being the most popular. Experienced professional guides use well-trained pointing and flushing/retrieving dogs from a kennel of 80+ dogs to ensure finding an abundance of gamebirds and getting a strong flight when the birds flush.

More than a dozen sites for European-style driven pheasant shoots have been developed throughout the Ranch. The rugged ledges above Joshua Creek and the Guadalupe River along with the hills overlooking fertile fields are used to drive pheasants high over a line of guns positioned below. Shooters are challenged at three or four different drive sites in a half-day by scores of prime pheasants exploding from bluffs and ridges and soaring high overhead! Driven pheasant shooting opportunities extend into May.

Joshua Creek Ranch offers some of Texas' finest dove hunting in the renowned South Central Texas dove hunting corridor. With a more private setting and fewer dove hunters afield than many over-crowded dove hunting ranches, the Ranch provides a unique experience for dove hunters, including guides with retrieving dogs.

As the newest addition to the wingshooting scenarios at the Ranch, decoyed Mallard Duck hunts have become a customer favorite, especially for waterfowl enthusiasts who enjoy extending duck hunting into May. Shallow ponds bordered by cattails and tall elm trees create an ideal decoyed mallard duck hunting habitat featuring fast and frequent shooting action from seven comfortable blinds.
